SECURITY AND PATROLS

- On March 3, UN Police (UNPOL) assisted the South Sudan National Police Service (SSNPS) with a clearing and search operation outside of the main gate of the UN House protection site in Juba.
- The objective of the operation was to clear groups involved in criminality on the protection site and its immediate surroundings, and check for weapons and military items, as well as drugs and other contraband smuggled on the site.
- UNMISS is currently protecting some 16,000 civilians at its UN House protection site.

NEW PoC SITES

- On March 4, the South Sudanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs, UNMISS and the Chinese Government signed a tripartite letter of endorsement on the construction project of a new PoC site next to UN house in Juba.
- The site will be constructed on 600 sq. meters of land made available earlier in the year by the government.
- Work on the PoC site commenced two weeks ago (12 Feb) with leveling and drainage undertaken by Chinese workers and the United Nations Project Services (UNOPS). Emergency funding was also made available by the Central Emergency Response Fund (CERF).
- Within the framework of the letter of endorsement, Chinese companies including the China National Petroleum Company (CNPC) have announced they will fund US$1.6 million to support construction and improve conditions so over 10,000 civilians can move to the new site.
- Chinese military engineers from the UNMISS Chinese Engineering Company will also participate in the project.
